Other Information	Taken from Ken Reading's (his son) second book: 'From Teeton Lodge Farm (Teeton in 1911 Census) my father joined the Northants Yeomanry. Consequently in 1914 he found himself a part of what the Kaiser described as 'That contemptible little army'. In 1915 he was involved in the terrible battle of Neuve Chappelle, when cavalry who should have broken through enemy lines were trapped in the town and heavily bombarded. He was later involved in the terrible battles of Arras. 1917 saw the regiment transferred to Northern Italy to meet the advancing Austrians. There his horse was shot from beneath him. He later returned through enemy lines with two prisoners, an exploit that earned him the Military Medal. He and his platoon of seven men were later to be given the task of escorting 3,000 Austrian prisoners to a camp at San Marino. They were mostly colonial troops, from what was to become Yugoslavia, with little interest in dying for the Hapsburg Empire'.
